

MORNING APPEAL.

Sunday, January 23 1887.

A STATE MUSEUM.

The State has now in its possession one of the finest mineral cabinets in the West. It has been collected with great care and is very valuable.

The Society of Pioneers recently voted to give to the State its cabinet which, aside from its geological value, is rich in relics which are inseparably connected with the early history of Nevada. This gift from the Pioneer Society to the State is one which cannot in the wide world be duplicated. Should the State accept this magnificent donation it has no suitable place to put it. The mineral cabinet which is worth in the neighborhood of $40,000 is now stored in the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction and is sadly in the way. There should be an appropriation made of at least $10,000 to erect a stone building on the Capitol square where these two cabinets can be placed on exhibition illustrative of the mineral wealth of the State. In this museum could also be placed specimens of the agricultural products of the various counties of Nevada that when the time arrives for our immigration boom those seeking land in Nevada can by visiting the museum ascertain by personal inspection what they can expect in the shape of agricultural returns if they take up land here. During the past few years several advanced guards of immigration colonies have visited this city with a view of securing lands but were able to find out so little concerning them that they left in disgust and settled in California. When they asked to see some specimens of the agricultural products no one could show them anything that had ever been raised here and they naturally concluded that Nevada didn't amount to much as a State. The museum would be a standing advertisement of the resources of Nevada with an aquarium for fish, a place for its game birds and animals, either alive or stuffed, statistics of its bullion output, specimens from all of its mines, photographs of thoroughbred stock of all kinds and a thousand of other things which the fancy of a Board of competent Commissioners might suggest, surrounded by a garden of flowers, shrubs and ornamental trees.

THE INTER-STATE COMMERCE BILL.

The Inter-State Commerce Bill has passed both Houses, and now only awaits the signature of the President. That the President will sign there can be no doubt, as the large majority of the bill received in both Houses precludes the possibility of a veto.

The bill is the result of a long struggle in Congress between its framers and the railroad companies. It contains many provisions of doubtful utility, but the clause prohibiting a greater charge for a short haul than a long one, is of incalculable benefit to Nevada. It will at once place us on an equal footing with San Francisco. It will cause a general reduction on all classes of goods, provided the merchants of Nevada do not attempt to take advantage of the situation by keeping up old prices. Should they do it, however, other dealers in San Francisco will speedily locate here, and sell at a reasonable profit.

It is claimed that the bill will be detrimental to California, but the APPEAL is inclined to believe that in the long run it will not prove so. It is, however, a matter of experiment. Whether it does or not, is no concern of anyone in Nevada. Nevada is pushing out for itself now, and has no time to stop and consider how its neighbors will get along. We are strictly for ourselves.

There is no disposition on the part of the roads to fight or evade the provisions of the bill on technical grounds or legal quibbles. The managers of the roads have signified their intentions to conform with the new order of affairs. The APPEAL believes that in a few years the roads will be less adverse to the bill than now.

Cheap freight rates will soon build up a new country, and in the end the road will find a thickly settled country to feed upon, and a reduction of rates will be more than compensated by the augmented population.

THE NEW SALARY LAW.

The disposal of the new salary law is now in the hands of the Supreme Court. It is held by some of the ablest lawyers in the State to be unconstitutional. Its provisions were enacted during one of the economy and reform spasms which occasionally affect a Legislative body. The people of Nevada do not want to see its public servants compelled to live on next to nothing. If the law holds it will simply result in a cheap class of officials and the result will be liable to cost the taxpayers more in the long run than the very highest salaries. It is false economy to pursue a niggardly course in these matters and the sooner these things are understood the better.

A BACK FILE FIGHT.

The editor of the Chronicle, who at present manages the railroad department of that journal, is engaged in making what is known to the newspaper profession as a "back file fight." Several years ago the Chronicle made vigorous war on the roads, and the present editor simply goes over the back files and reproduces the live paragraphs of that period. Why the managers of that journal should go to the tremendous expense of supporting an editorial luxury, when, by paying the office boy a dollar more a week to handle the shears the same result could be obtained, is not apparent.
